THEY CAN'T BE BEAT.

Two cases of "Hole Proof Sox," in assorted colors, have just been received at the Portland Clothing and Shoe Store. The colors are black, brown, gray, navy blue and black with white feet. Since taking the agency for this celebrated foot-wear the Portland Store has sold 150 dozen. Only nine pair have been returned to be replaced.

"Hole Proof Sox are the cheapest that I have ever worn," said W. O. Huson, manager of the Long Lake Lumber company, "and I want another half dozen pairs. The last ones I bought are not yet worn out and I consider them cheap because they wear well. Ordinary sox last me one or two days, but I can't wear out the Hole Proof.

Mr. Huson bought some out of the new shipment and other wearers of this well known footwear should get their supply early for the two cases will last but a short time and the demand is so strong in all parts of the country that it is hard to get large shipments.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

A steady job and a strict boss may be one way of saving the youth of our country that said youth may not appreciate until it doubles its years.

The conversation method of approaching the matrimonial question may be intellectual, but it does not commend itself to the average girl nearly so strongly as the theater and automobile way.

Sometimes it is really disappointing and depressing when people just naturally fall to live down to the dead level we have mapped out for them.

The less some people think of us the more unholly glee we feel.

Many a man who can't talk much makes a big hit at keeping still.

The thirst for knowledge that most boys feel is not the sort that the teacher of the public school keeps on tap.

Winter cannot always be with us, but in some portions of the globe he seems to be trying to see how close he can come to it and still be safe.

Strive not to be prejudiced, but if you can't help it don't let it interfere with your side.

Many a man makes a bluff, while many another is made by a bluff.

Occasionally a man is washed upon the shores of matrimony by a woman's tears.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

THE MODERN AGRICULTURIST.

Once on a time the farmers found A most engaging charm About the man who read a book To find out how to farm. But now the college graduate Goes forth to show them how To mix up soil and seeds and such And educate the cow.

The man who found out how to farm By working at his trade Isn't stuck up with the farmers who By college are made. He may produce as large a crop; But, then, he doesn't know What chemicals by nature mixed Induced the grain to grow.

It isn't all in plowing hay Or wrestling with the plow That makes a man succeed or fail In farming ventures now. In knowing how to thwart the bug That feasts upon his crop He may be losing half the time And still come out on top.

Yes, science, with a kindly hand, Has dipped into the genes. To show the modern farmers how They beat the soil may tame. And now the oldest son comes home From college primed to show His father how to run the place The way that it should go.

"Have you tried the new restaurant?"
"Yes."
"How is it?"
"Well, it would be all right if its eggs were as fresh as its waitresses."

Adequate Punishment.
"You heard how he imposed on society?"
"No."

"Well, he used to be a waiter, and, having learned good manners at that profession, he passed himself off as a duke."

"I suppose society was furious when it found him out."

"It was wild."

"Was anything ever done to punish him for it?"

"Yes; he was expelled from the waiters' union."

The parties making the soil survey of Klamath county are now in the field and have begun the work.
